

Cindy Morris, Secretary THE KIVA CENTER

Cindy, originally from the Midwest, came to Colorado to attend The University of Colorado in Boulder. After graduating with a degree in Education, she remained in Colorado and went on to become an elementary school teacher in Douglas County Schools in 1980. After being a teacher for over 25 years, she left the classroom to become a teacher trainer, and then an elementary school administrator. Her final years with Douglas County were filled with opportunities to give back to the education community.

One of Cindy's passions is the outdoors and she has used her educational experience to teach at several outdoor education centers in the Colorado area. She taught students to appreciate, respect and take care of their environment; as well as enjoy themselves in the beautiful outdoors.

Since retirement, Cindy has become a volunteer for the Douglas County Sheriff's office as a victim's assistant. Currently, she is also the secretary of the Board of Directors with the Kiva Center. The Kiva Center allows Cindy to use her passion for the environment and extensive classroom experience to support this educational organization as they carry out their mission.
